Department or Chair within the UNIOS Unit
Study program	Medicine
Study level	Integrated undergraduate and graduate university study
Course title	Medical English 2
Course code (if any)	MED02-001
Language of instruction	English
Brief course description	The course Medical English 2 encompasses the topics dealt with within the core medical curriculum (musculoskeletal system, integumentary system, blood, lymphatic system, and immunity). Students acquire English medical terminology related to the aforementioned body systems (anatomy, physiology, pathology), simultaneously correlating those English medical terms with corresponding terms in Croatian, as well as linking medical English terminology to general English forms (scapula – shoulder bone/blade – lat. scapula – lopatična kost/lopatica). By acquiring a specific number of the most frequent word roots, prefixes, and suffixes, the students are provided with the opportunity not only to recognize a large number of medical terms, but also to build them according to the need. The most important goal of the entire Medical English curriculum, however, is to provide a basic introduction to dealing with professional literature in English by practicing the skills of searching, summarizing as well as presenting the professional data, and in that way to equip the students for the process of lifelong self-education, which is to be an inevitable part of their future professional life.
